RESOLUTIONS.

Uncas Tribe, No. 189, I. O. R. M. Bolts Fork, Ky.
Whereas it has pleased the great spirit of the universe to call from the forest of life to the happy grounds our worthy brother, Jas. Davis, of Uncas Tribe, No. 189, of Bolts Fork, Ky., Improved Order of Red Men, who was born, Nov. 15, 1830, departed this life March 28, 1919.

Therefore be it Resolved, first, that by his death our order has lost a faithful brother, the parents a dutiful son, the sisters and brothers a kind and affectionate brother, the community an exemplary young man.

Second, that the members of this Tribe are deeply grieved by the death of Brother Davis, and extend their sympathy to the bereaved family and friends, and commend them to Him who death all things will.

Third, that these resolutions be spread upon the record book of our tribe and a copy be sent to the bereaved friends and published in the Big Sandy News and the Kentucky Democrat.

FORT GAY ITEMS.

Mrs. J. N. York, of Glenhorne, was here for a few days last week taking medical treatment. She has been in bad health for some time.

The Republicans of Butler district held their convention here Saturday. J. O. Billups was nominated for President and Levi Ellis for member of the Board of Education.

The Fort Gay school opened last Monday with an enrollment of 96. This increases daily and the R. of E. will probably be asked to furnish another teacher.

Sam Peters has accepted a position in the Indian service and is now on the Indian payroll at a handsome salary. He was one of our school teachers and we feel sure he will make good. The State Enterprise.

Oldest Pensioner in United States.

It will doubtless surprise a majority of our readers as well as all citizens of the state and United States as well to learn that Wolfe county has the distinction of having among her citizens the oldest pensioner in the United States and the only one drawing for the war of 1812. The pensioner is Mrs. Elizabeth Taulbee.

A Venerable Brother.

Peaches and Table Linen.

The arrival of peaches in the general market means a menace to table linen. Not every young house wife realizes the danger until some of her choicest cloths and napkins are ruined by spots that are set in the washing. Before turning the table linen over to the laundress—and this is safe at any time of the year—each piece should be examined for spots. Boiling water poured from a height through the cloth will remove any fruit stain before it is subjected to soap. But once washed in soap suds the blemish is fixed. Crepe paper napkins always appear with the fruit plates in many homes now where the colored fruit napkins were once universally employed. The paper napkins are a hint to the guest, too, to think of the linen, and they save many an anxious minute later.

The Red and the Child.

One hearing the excellent sermon of Elder Gosling last Sunday morning would be led to the conclusion that a small quantity of second growth hickory applied externally and repeated when necessary, is an effective remedy for some ills.
